sl
1/3/08

At page 1, line 18 ~~38~~, change the paragraph to read as follows:

The mainframe environment was one where a large data processing resource was interconnected to a large number of "dumb terminals". The dumb terminals had minimal computational capabilities and were effectively utilized to display results on a screen and to input data from a keyboard. The terminal [being] was primarily under control of the mainframe computer system which carried out almost all the computational activity.